ΓΛΥΚΑ PASTRIES

Although fresh fruit is always served after a Greek meal, a sweet dessert follows an hour or two later. There is no doubt that Greeks have a sweet tooth! Many of these traditional pastries and cakes are known as “glyka tou tapsiou,” meaning “sweets from the baking pan.” Many are made with delicate tissue-thin phyllo (fillo) pastry, baked to a golden brown and dipped in honey or syrup. Serve them as snacks or dessert and in true Greek fashion, provide Greek Coffee and a tall glass of ice cold water – perfect compliments to the richness of the pastry.
